

Four Professors Are Chosen To Speak In Lecture Series

Outstanding Men In A & S College Slated For April

The third annual series of lectures by outstanding professors in the arts and sciences college, has been scheduled for the month of April, with Dr. Alexander Capurso, executive director of the music department; Dr. Thomas D. Clark, acting head of the history department; Dr. A. C. McFarlan, head of the geology department; and Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, head of the zoology department and dean of the graduate school, as the speakers.

These four men will represent, respectively, the divisions of literature, social studies, physical sciences, and biological sciences, and were chosen by the faculty of the college through popular election.

Through the two years that these lectures have been sponsored by the College of Arts and Sciences, the scholarly lectures presented by members of the faculty of the college have built up a major academic tradition on the campus and have been enthusiastically received by laymen, students and teachers. The exact dates for the current series, scheduled for April, and the speakers' topics will be announced at a later date.

Dr. Capurso

Dr. Capurso has been a member of the University staff since 1934. He is an alumnus of the institution, receiving his B.S. in music in 1933, his M.A. in 1934, and his Ph.D. in 1938. Previous to that he had studied in Philadelphia conservatories, at Pennsylvania State college, Temple university and the University of Pennsylvania.

In 1928 Dr. Capurso won the Carl F. Lauber award for original composition, and in 1936 the Kentucky composers contest. From 1937 to 1940 he was assistant director of the Carnegie community music research project with Kentucky as headquarters. He has contributed articles to the Journal of Applied Psychology, the Journal of American Psychology, and the Journal of Music.

Dr. Clark

Dr. Clark has been a member of the University staff since 1931. He obtained his A.B. from the University of Mississippi, his M.A. from the University of Kentucky, and his Ph.D. degree from Duke university. Before coming to the University he taught at Southwestern university, Memphis, Tenn., the University of Tennessee, and later, one year at the University of Rochester, N. Y. Dr. Clark is a well-known author and lecturer, probably his best-known books being The Kentucky, one of the Rivers of America series; The Ramping Frontier, A History (Continued on Page Four)

DR. A. C. McFARLAN . . . is the representative of the physical sciences division in the annual arts and sciences lecture series.

DR. W. D. FUNKHOUSER . . . will represent the division of biological sciences in the annual lecture series by outstanding professors.

DR. THOMAS D. CLARK . . . will speak for the division of social studies in the annual series of lectures by selected professors.

DR. ALEXANDER CAPURSO . . . represents the division of literature, philosophy, and the arts in the April series of lectures.

Wildcats Meet ARTC Team In Game Here Monday Night

Big Blue Plays For First Time Since Jan. 15

After being out of action since January 15, the Wildcats will meet the Armed Forces Replacement center quintet from Fort Knox at 8 p.m. Monday in Alumni gymnasium, it was announced Wednesday.

Along with this announcement came word that four prospective foes of the Blue and White have declined to play. Plans to meet the University of Arizona, the University of Louisville, DePauw university, and Washburn college have all been cancelled.

While the ARTC team which will play here Monday night is thought to have more power than the Fort Knox Post outfit which the Wildcats defeated in the season's first game, it is not described as a record-setter. The game was scheduled, primarily, to give the Wildcats some competition while their opponents are being lined up, according to Bernie Shively, athletic director.

Reduced admission rates will be in effect, it was announced. General admission will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. Student tickets will be good for the game.

The next scheduled college game is with the University of Illinois here February 7. The contest is already a complete sellout and Shively said that no more tickets are available to anyone. Members of the Assembly of Kentucky have been invited to attend the game.

Meanwhile, the 'Cats have been practicing without Walter Johnson, guard from Mt. Sterling, who has been called for induction in the Army. Johnson is expected to return to Lexington for either seven days or three weeks before going into active duty, however.

As a means of giving the Kentucky reserves some experience, Coach Adolph Rupp said that he might arrange a practice game between his second team and the Georgetown college Tigers.

President's Message

Dear Soldier-Graduates: Your term of service as soldier-trainees on the University of Kentucky campus has come to a close, and it is with sincere regret that we see you go, although, in leaving, we realize that you are only following the call of duty.

However, before you go from the University, I would like to say to you that the entire administration has appreciated your fine cooperation during the period of your training here, and has been fully cognizant of your sympathetic attitude toward your adopted alma mater.

Many of you, college men from other states, had already pledged your first loyalties to your own schools, but we hope that during the time you have been in training and in study here you have found some place in your hearts for the University of Kentucky. At least, we can assure you that you have a definite place in the hearts and loyalties of your University faculty and friends.

So, today, on the threshold of your entry into a new phase of your military training, I greet you with both regret at your going and congratulations upon the successful completion of your assignment here—and wish you good luck and Godspeed!

Cordially,
H. L. Donovan, President

Vogt Is Elected As Head Of Union Dance Committee

Maryann Vogt, education senior from Louisville, was elected chairman of the Union dance committee, replacing Jay C. Doyle, who is no longer in school.

Miss Vogt, who has been active in Union projects, is now serving as the chairman of the War Effort committee.

In a statement yesterday she said, "We intend to have bigger and better dances—more sweater swings and more Saturday night dances." The Saturday night dances will be given a theme, with no-break cards and decorations carrying out each theme, she explained. Personal invitations will be issued to the ASTP at Richmond, the Navy V-12 at Berea, the air cadets at Danville and Transylvania, and the Navy at Morehead. Miss Vogt hopes to create more student interest in these dances, she said.

Furloughs!

All members of the ASTP unit stationed on the campus, except those assigned to the Air Corps, will be on furlough next week, according to Lieut. Arthur A. Erickson.

This will be the third leave granted the trainees since their enrollment in May, 1943.

Tickets To Play At Guignol To Be Dropped From Plane

Most Unique Promotion Stunt Is Being Planned

By Wanda Lee Spears

Free tickets to Guignol's forthcoming production, Candlelight, which opens February 7, will be dropped from an airplane over several central Kentucky towns in the little theater's most unique promotion stunt.

For the first time in Guignol's history the play will be advertised by means of aviation. Phil Sutterfield, special student at the University, will drop leaflets of information concerning the production from the plane. In some of the leaflets will be two free tickets to the play.

Restaurant Idea

One of the local restaurants, for another angle of the promotion scheme, will have its tables decorated with leaflets of information

Faculty, Staff Drive Started In Bond Campaign

Taking another step towards its goal of "A Jeep A Week," the campus war bond drive, under the Student Government association's Victory committee, began an intensive personal canvass of faculty and staff members this week. In connection with the Fourth War Loan, faculty members are being asked to buy extra bonds.

Through the cooperation of the Lexington organization for the drive, the University solicitations are being made by the Victory committee and the University will be given credit for all bonds sold. Individual members of the Victory committee have been assigned certain buildings on the campus and will personally contact all faculty members.

Already, according to Chairman Eleanor Bach, several bonds have been purchased although no definite figures were available at press time. Several other persons have pledged themselves to buy bonds before the end of the campaign, she said.

Extensive plans are being formulated for opening the student phase of the drive in approximately two weeks. Although she would not reveal the nature of the committee's plans, Miss Bach indicated that some special event was being arranged for the opening of the student drive.

Flag Arrangements

Arrangements are now under way, she explained, to obtain the "Minute Man" flag to be flown in front of the Administration building every month in which at least 90 percent of the students purchase at least one war savings stamp.

Bonds and stamps will soon be available in all women's residence houses and sorority houses, and students will be urged to keep the pledges made last quarter.

Cooperation with the Lexington drive was evidenced by the participation of several campus organizations in the parade held Monday. K-dets, women's drill team, marched in the parade and most sororities were represented by specially decorated cars.

Committee Named

Miss Bach's committee is composed of Bettye McClanahan, June Baker, Mary Searcy, and Marion Vance. The group is assisted by Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes and Miss Alice Jacobson.

Selected to represent the residence and sorority houses and to contact faculty members are:

Alpha Delta Pi, Ann Howell; Alpha Gamma Delta, Alma Clark.

Question: Do you think that members of the Armed Forces should be allowed to vote in the national election?

Bill Sturgill, A&S, sophomore: By all means, if they're fighting to preserve democracy, they should have a voice in the operation of the government.

Pfc. James H. Snodgrass, Patterson hall: Absolutely, that's what we're fighting for.

Mabel Carnes, A&S, junior: I think they should, but there isn't any way to work it out so that they can all vote.

Pvt. Buck Heavale, Bradley hall: Sure; they fight, why shouldn't they vote.

Mary Saunders, Ag., senior: Yes, because they're fighting for their country and should be allowed to vote.

Pvt. C. O. Argent, Bradley hall: I sure do for an obvious reason.

George Miller, Eng., sophomore: Yes, if they're going to fight, they ought to have a voice in the government.

Pvt. Fred Holderman, Bradley hall: Definitely, they're citizens of the United States, too.

Morrison Swift, A&S, senior: Of course I do, because I believe it's the democratic right of all people of voting age to vote.

Pfc. Seymour Saltsburg, Patterson hall: Yes, because we can't vote at home, so they should bring the votes to us.

Pfc. Milt Evans, Patterson hall: Yes, but I'm not worrying about it, I'm not old enough to vote.

T-5 Ollie Silverstein, Patterson hall: No one below a T-5 should be allowed to vote.

Pvt. John Kilgore, Bradley hall: Yes, a soldier is as good as a civilian anytime.

The Mole-Hill That Grew

Reaction to our editorial "Bad Taste At Alumni Gym" which appeared in The Kernel last week has been overwhelming. Particularly articulate, though necessarily anonymously so, have been members of the ASTP on campus.

The consensus of their reaction seems to be that The Kernel was not clear in pointing out that only a few of their number were responsible for the demonstration at the game; that they have the right to cheer for any team they favor; and that The Kernel has gotten the men "in hot water" with the military authorities. Some of the men have declared that our editorial said in effect "cheer UK or else."

The Kernel has always welcomed student reaction to its utterances, and regrets that in this instance the persons who are affected by the editorial are not able to reply directly.

The point of the editorial was simple: There were a few ASTP men at the game in question who booed our cheerleaders, and we didn't like it. We did not and do not object to ASTP men rooting for an opposition team, especially when that team is made up of Army men. And, we don't think it commendable, but it is certainly permissible to razz the team you oppose. A little good-natured kidding is also in order. However, a few of the men were out of line in their hooted comments to Coach Rupp, and they were out of line in the treatment which they accorded our cheerleaders. This is not denied.

We earnestly feel that although such conduct on the part of a few is not to be condoned, it should not be the cause of the group as a whole being barred from any games which might be scheduled on Saturday nights in the future. If our editorial results in such an action on the part of the military authorities we can only

Coed Gives Soldier's Views Regarding Kernel Editorial

Dear Editor:
We certainly seem to have trouble deciding what our friends the "ASTPers" are to be allowed to do here on the campus, and whether they are students here or just live here. I think I am speaking for the majority of my GI acquaintances when I say that they deeply resented the editorial in last week's Kernel regarding their conduct at the last game.
I was at the game and kidded them about cheering for the wrong side, to which they replied that they were cheering for them half because they were a real Army team, and half because they were the underdogs. Well, is there any good reason why they should have any more loyalty for a school to which they have been temporarily sent (not by their own choice) than for the Army of which they are essentially a part?
As to the booing of the cheerleaders—I didn't hear it, but if it did occur I'm sure it was done in a friendly fashion, for there could be none more appreciative of the "art of cheerleading" than the soldiers.
As a result of this rather severe editorial the Military department has taken steps to see that the student body is not further annoyed by the rowdy element in the ASTP—in short they have been forbidden to attend any more inter-collegiate games here on the campus. This, when the Illinois game, which should be the best game played in our own gym, is scheduled for the first Monday after the boys return

What Goes On There...

By Helen Carroll
Well! Well!

There's nothing new in bringing home a newspaper and finding a dead fish inside, or in removing a cork and seeing an empty bottle staring you in the face. An ASTP vet at Auburn thinks this nothing compared to what he found when he unwrapped his laundry bundle. There tucked away in the lower right hand corner was a baby-blue infant's blanket with ducks merrily swimming around its edges. Since baby blankets aren't GI he can't use it. So, if the baby-or-babe-to-whom it belongs will telephone, it's hers for the asking.

Turn On The Heat
From the Glenview Mercury comes news of the heat situation at Ohio State. Woolies may be the style this year, not for beauty's sake, but for more practical purposes on the Ohio State campus. "All the buildings on campus will be kept under 70 degrees in temperature in compliance with President Bevis' request to save fuel," the maintenance engineer, said recently in a warning to Ohio States.

Reasons for having more heat turned on will have to be pretty good to get results. It is doubtful that the coeds at Ohio State will go back to "grandma's day" and wear six or eight petticoats, a muff, or even long underwear, but more slacks and flannel shirts may be expected to be seen on the campus.

It Was a Good Idea, Anyway
Sex moved in on the Post Office bulletin board this week at Duke. A V-12er, loser of a Shaeffer lifetime pen, posted a notice. Aware of the lack of attention which such announcements generally arouse, he neatly printed his notice in conspicuous black type alongside an even more conspicuous, colorful imitation of an Esquire Petty girl.

The curvaceous caricature drew attention, all right. Eager marines, sailors, civilians, and even the professors gathered around all day, blocking traffic in the P. O.
At the end of the day, however, the temptation was too great. The Petty girl was gone, ripped from the neat announcement with reckless abandon. The mere notice regarding the lost pen forcibly remained. And the V-12er at latest

Oh, there was one who teased the girls.
And one who couldn't spell.
All the other Franks and Earls.
They thought they knew so well.
And when their names are called aloud

Their teachers all must be.

Good Advertising
At Michigan State one coed put up a sign in Ag hall: FOUND—One G. I. raincoat, and after it she put her name and phone number. Next day, beneath her notice, in a large hand was written: "I didn't lose a raincoat, but I'll call anyway." He did.

Onward Chuck Lang, Sinatra will fade, but with pipes like those you demonstrated under Mary L. Simpson's window that night you show real promise. (Apologies to Betty Ernest for not having her name in this week.)

The SAE hound (yes, they wash dogs too) called Sigma Phi Nothing, is doing well under Chi O Pledge Mary Kassenbrock's bed.

The council fire was burning with flickering flame—the mystics were gathered around—the Minnie Doyle consultants had one corner — the Fightmaster faction the other — the key and scripture group worked the charm slowly with the fate of all in their hands. This could go on for hours, and does. So far T. Delt Pledge Jane Miller has no future to speak of and Wanda Lee Spears isn't mentioned.

Step 3. You're ready for dessert and you're glad that the snow is still on the streets. You go outside with a spoon and any sort of a container, and gather the snow. Don't take it from the middle of the street where it has been retreated. Return the queer looks of the passers-by and go back inside. Mix in some of the sugar that you swiped from under the unsuspecting waitress' nose last week, and shake well. If you have any chocolate syrup throw that in, too. It will look like a chocolate sundae. (There's a slight possibility that it will resemble mud.)

You probably haven't got too much faith in these recipes. Honestly—we've tried them, and they're wonderful! If you want any more, just phone us at the Infirmary any time at all.

From the sub-basement of McVey hall comes the announcement that the "Influence of the Press" class of Dr. Niel Plummer, journalism prof, has changed to the "Influence of the Radio" under the auspices of WLAP announcer DOCTOR Phil Sutterfield. Dr. Plummer is currently auditing the course.

Long about noon every day the most natural phenomenon in the world takes place—we get hungry.
So we go to the basement of the Union and walk demurely through the doors of the grill with the prospect of food staring us straight in the face.
We no sooner get through the doors than we bump right into the cafeteria line and we wait.
And we wait. . . .
After we finally get to the line and get our tray and silverware and food, we look around for a table—there are none.
By the time we finally get our food and a table we realize that we weren't hungry anyway.
This happens every day.
We think that something should be done.

We've heard about fantastic advisory boards and super-speed committees in wartime Washington, but never anything to equal the committee SGA prexy Vincent Spagnuolo appointed last week. Feeling that the University didn't have enough traditions, Spag asked the committee to "establish some traditions—before the end of the quarter." To the Committee on Snazzy Traditions Established Quick (Reasonable rates on Folkways and Mores, also—We Aim To Please) may we offer the following suggestion: How about making it traditional for all profs to carry jugs of moonshine to classes—in honor of one of our state's greatest industries.

This column would like to stick its neck out this week by listing some of the things and people it likes. We like many, many things but today's list will be short. For example, we like:

Frank Sinatra and The Music Stopped
Fudge cake and ice cream
The bookstore at 3
Sweater swings and the Kampus Kats
BSOC Ed Yewell
Indefatigable Julie Landrum
Basketballer Anne Anderson
Good-natured Bernie Shively
Unpredictable Elizabeth Hunt
Suave soldier Jim Bunning
The Grill — UK's Rainbow Room—and Mr. Roberts

We'd like to nominate Martha McCauley for something. She hasn't been in our column for weeks and we've received several letters asking for her name in print. We think that Miss McCauley, typifying as she does the ideals of Lambda Nu Phi, should be nominated from this campus as a candidate in the nation-wide contest to choose the "Pin-Up Girl of Lambda Nu Phi." (It seems that said fraternity sent UK's SGA a longhand letter asking for nominations in its nationwide search for a coed to be designated thusly. The letter said nothing about the sorority or fraternity, what it stood for, who belonged to it. We suggested to secretary Bennet that the letter be filed in the wastebasket under L.)

One night at Rose St. two campus characters dared us to print their names. They were: SCOTT REED and RALPH LOONEY.

Wotzis about a reception for our Frankfort legislators after the Illinois game? We hear they're going to invite two students from each county to entertain Congressmen and dance with Senators. Who knows—maybe we'll even get a field house from the deal.

Sample of thing to come may well be next week. A campus devoid of those "Yankees," no men in that olive drab. Rife rumors (rumors are always rife, you know) have it that the ASTP will gradually be cut down to nothing. So, gals, practice next week. Playing bridge with the girls from 6 to 7:30, going to a show with the girls on Saturday night, walking across campus with the girls every day between classes. Sounds like fun, doesn't it?

We are very sorry to refuse to some of our friends the privilege of appearing as Kornel of the Week. . . . These people are too nice. We do not want to ruin any fine young lives. So to the following persons, we offer apologies. You are too good: Jim Hurt, Jeannette Graves, Carolyn Spicer, Duane Van Horn, and Mary Jane Galaher.

ZTA Pledges Entertain At Tea

The pledge class of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority entertained from 4 to 6 Wednesday afternoon with a tea in honor of the pledges of the other sororities on the campus.

Mrs. Eileen Glover, housemother, presided at the tea table which was centered with pink and white snapdragons.

In the receiving line were Betty Anne Bohn, Ft. Wayne, Ind., president; Dorothy Tittsworth, Kevill, vice-president; and Elsie March, Hornesville, N. Y., pledge mistress. Roberta Ratchford, Lexington, social chairman, was in charge of the affair.

Sullivan-Hillenmeyer

Miss Mary Eileen Sullivan's engagement to Lieut. Robert H. Hillenmeyer, of Fort Benning, Ga., son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Hillenmeyer, has been announced by her mother, Mrs. Neville Clohesy Sullivan. The wedding will take place in February.

Miss Sullivan attended the University where she was a pledge of Chi Omega sorority.

Lieutenant Hillenmeyer was graduated from the commerce college in 1943. While at the University he was president of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He received the Sullivan Medallion for the most outstanding man in his graduating class. A representative of the University in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, he was a member of Scabbard and Blade, military honorary, and the Union board. He served as president of Omicron Delta Kappa, senior men's leadership fraternity, and as business manager of The Kernel. He received his commission at Fort Benning in December.

Coed Corner...

By Mary Jane Gallaher

Have you decided which uniform does the most for your undernourished self in case the draft-everybody law goes through? If not you'd shore better be takin' a quick gander around—you'll probably be 1A. (That has nothing to do with the size of things Whilroyde—just forget about that pound you gained.) On a tour of the local hot spots, notably one Irishman's cafe and one hotel hangout of our basketball-scoffing friends-in-khaki, we polled an opinion that the bill is not going to pass and all you fair Southern maidens may return to your plowing in peace. The figures and facts, and who'll buy you a drink where, from the above mentioned survey will be furnished to those desiring to do future research upon request.

Fair Tresses

Fair tresses and raven locks and what to do with them when they look like Topsy's is the topic of our oration for this issue. 'Bout this time of year when the weather is bad and your last summer's permanent has reached the straggly stage, you just about decide that a hunk of hair that you can drape on the bed post at night would improve matters. Take heart fair maiden (a good peroxide solution will keep you fair in a big way) 'cause things can be done. First of all, if you don't know how by now the time has come to learn how to wash and set your own hair. Beauty shops have doubled in their charges and if you're akin to most of us you don't have time to spare anyhow. Once you get used to the washing and kinking it up yourself you'll find that the process is a speedy one.

Buy Shampoo

Purchase yourself a good shampoo. Please do not use the cake-of-soap or roommates-flake method.

it's definitely destructive. Wet your hair thoroughly, soap twice and rinse 'til you 'bout drown to insure getting out the soap. When it squeaks that's a fairly good sign that the deed is well done. If you wish, use a rinse of some sort, peroxide or lemon for gilding the lily and vinegar or kitchen bluing solution helps to make for shiny dark locks.

Rub Thoroughly

Rub with a towel until the excess moisture is gone and then set while still damp. If you have much of a perm, do set it in loose pin curls, or else it will be too tight. Roll the curls around your finger, one finger on your (we hope) clean scalp, and the other winding the hair. If you want fluffy loose curls put quite a bit of hair in each curl, be careful and don't get too little, or they'll be like corkscrews. And you know where corkscrews lead you—right into a bottle neck.

Good Brushing

For cleaning without shampooing you'll find that a good brushing is most satisfactory, more so than meal or other home remedies as they do not come out easily. For curling when you've got five minutes before he arrives (and they're too scarce to keep waiting these days) try soaking those stragglers in cologne and then rolling them up. It dries in a minute or two, leaves your hair smelling heavenly, and is not harmful if not used too often. Remember it when you're really pressed for time.

One word of warning about doing your own hair-do. Have it cut by someone who knows their job, and get a good permanent. It pays dividends in the long run.

Ex-Student, Here On Leave, Describes Bombing Missions

Capt. James W. Craig, who has completed 42 missions over enemy territory without a scratch, is reporting today at Miami Beach, Fla., for re-assignment to duty after a leave spent in Lexington.

Captain Craig, who has seen 17 months of flying duty in the Southwest Pacific, left the University, where he was majoring in economics, two years ago to become a bombardier.

Inspirer of Edition

At the University, Captain Craig is credited with having inspired the Camp Edition of The Kernel, a single sheet publication the size of the student edition, which is sent regularly to 1,500 University men and women now in service.

In a letter to the Public relations department, Captain Craig, soon after he entered service, wrote that he wanted news from the University. The University alumni association influenced the Board of Trustees to finance the publication, which is edited by Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, assistant professor of journalism.

In speaking of his adventures as a bombardier, Captain Craig asserts that the United States flyers are superior in equipment and training to the Japs—and that he has seen a weakening in strength and fighting ability of the Japanese during recent months. He emphasizes, however, that the Japs aren't licked and that there is a tough battle ahead.

Awarded Medal

Veteran of two major campaigns, the Papuan and the New Guinea, he has been awarded the Army Air medal for 25 operational missions. In the Papuan battles, including the Bougainville, Buna, Gona, and Savananda engagements, he earned a citation.

Describing his first mission as his most exciting, the captain told how the attack on Japanese shipping at Buna in the latter part of 1942 proved highly exciting. That was the first time that he and his crew on a B-25 Mitchell bomber were attacked by Jap Zeros.

He was frightened most, he said, when he and his crew attacked shipping at Wewak. In the harbor congested with shipping, they ran into enemy fire from fighters and craft, but escaped unscathed. His bomber, The Pacific Prowler, and its crew has been officially credited with knocking down two Jap Zeros and with several probables.

His longest single mission was from his home base in New Guinea to Rabaul, a distance of 1,000 miles.

No Suicide Dives

During his 42 missions, Captain Craig said he never saw any Japs attempting suicide dives. "Those Japs," he explained, "want to get home the same as we do."

Captain Craig was commissioned a second lieutenant and received his wings at Midland Field, Texas, June 11, 1942. He was promoted to first lieutenant in New Guinea, April 17, 1943, and received his captain's commission, also in New Guinea, November 16, 1943, shortly before he started for home. The trip was made by air.

We'll Hold Down The Fort 'Til The Conquerers Return

By Martha Belle Hood

The fraternity house as a winter resort for women has its points, we've found. Point one, of course, is the fact that most of the lads returning from overseas or elsewhere are entirely unaware that the aforesaid building is now inhabited by women. Therefore, neither dusk and dark nor bolts and bars will keep them out when they want in. This keeps things lively.

Point One

Take for instance that Thursday afternoon that I decided to sleep. I distributed some 10-odd iron curlers among my hairs, disrobed to some extent, and put the remains to bed. A few minutes later, when I was about half and half (asleep, I mean), I heard a noise outside my door. Suspecting foul play from some beloved friend, I slipped to the door and yanked it open right in the face of some startled male clad in a Navy uniform.

"Welcome home," I said with as much exuberance as I could muster, "can I get you your pipe and slippers?" The poor soul gulped and mumbled something rather inaudible about "my old room . . . men . . ." and "water . . ." I got him the beverage, directed him into the front room, and before long (after doing away with said curlers) we got real chummy. Which finishes up point one.

Point Two

Point two goes under the heading of that "on-your-own" feeling you hear so much about. For example, you're "on-your-own" to get up and light the gas at 7 a. m. or else you're "on-your-own" to freeze to death at 8; and you're "on-your-own" to take the first of 23 showers each night or you're "on-your-own" to bathe in icicles; and you're "on-your-own" to meet your date (when and if) at the door and hustle him toward, sight unseen, or you'll be "on-your-own" the rest of the evening. We ran an experiment one night and discovered that the word "man" spread quicker from cellar to attic than the word "fire." Finis point two.

Point Three

Point three is labeled "How to be a jack-of-all trades." Where but in a fraternity house would a girl with no previous bombing experience learn to drop a flowerpot from a second story window onto the head of a peeping-tom with such alarming force and accuracy? Then there's the case of the two damsels with flat purses and expanded nerve who supplied themselves with assorted polishes and brushes and invaded the parlor at 7:30 Sunday night. As each unsuspecting date entered, he was pounced upon, brushed, and shined. Then he either paid up like a gentleman or he refused like a heel and was treated accordingly by all present. The idea benefitted its conceivers with roughly 69 cents. Well, so much for point three.

Point Four

Point four is named Mandy Jane. We call her "the black diamond" and, believe me, it's apropos. She scurries around like a little steam engine from a.m. to p.m. and is the "answer to 23 maidens' prayers" when there's an unheralded house inspection. Mandy directs the lives of "her girls" just as she did the lives of "her boys." 'Tis rumored that she was the pillar of the whole organization (having been with them 18 years) and occasionally we take a "family secret" or two out of her.

Exeunt points.

We Love It

Enough said now about everything except how much we like our house. Who cares if it's practically a back-to-nature existence; who cares if we have to rub stones together occasionally for heat; who cares if we're blown out of our respective beds nightly by the blizzards coming through the cracks in the windows; who cares if we have to dress by yellow candlelight everytime some brave character attaches an iron to our overloaded circuit? We gripe about our abode but the fact remains that we'll fight down to that last tooth and (finger) nail any slandering remarks from strangers. We love every creak and groan of her ancient bones and are doing our best to hold down the fort til the conquering heroes return to their castle.

Travel Exhibit Is In Library

A new idea to promote public interest in library science is the traveling exhibit now in the main lobby of the University library, which after ten days will be packed up and shipped to various high school, public and college libraries in the state.

The exhibit is, according to Dr. R. H. Logsdon, head of the University Library Science department, "so far as we know, the first of its kind," and is "our contribution to the effort to interest more young people in library science as a profession."

He said the idea was suggested by the shortage of trained librarians now and the even more acute shortage indicated for the future by the low enrollment in library science schools.

Posters, charts, pamphlets and magazine articles make up the display. There is a recent copy of Life magazine with the pages opened to the pictures which a Life photographer took in a public library, and a copy of the September, 1943 Mademoiselle in which there is an article, on the subject entitled "Passing the Book."

According to some of the statistics, there is only one librarian for every 3,600 persons, as compared to the ratio of one doctor to every 800. It is a small profession, but it is a growing one.

Dr. Logsdon said that the department had already received requests from Louisville, Ashland, Campbellsville, and Danville for the circulating exhibit, which is to remain a week in each of the libraries where it is sent.

Robinson Given Five Years After Pleading Guilty

Andrew Robinson, Negro, 44, was tried in Payette Circuit court yesterday and sentenced to five years after he entered a plea of guilty to the charge of detaining a woman against her will.

Arrested and charged with attempted rape Sunday, January 16, Robinson was held to the Payette county grand jury after the charge had been amended in police court, Monday, January 17.

Mrs. Mary Boswinkle, a nurse at the University Health building, told officers that the Negro seized her about 7:15 a.m. as she was walking up the University exit drive from South Limestone street to the Health building.

Devotion to a task is a better measure of success than dollars.

Eastern Coach Loaned To Kentucky Grid Staff

Rome Rankin To Serve As Football Assistant

Rome Rankin, head coach at Eastern State Teachers college since 1935, is being loaned to the University to serve as assistant coach for the duration, it was announced yesterday.

A letter from Dr. Herman L. Donovan, president of the University, stated that the University desires to have Rankin aid in obtaining men for a football team this fall and wishes him to have supervision over the players at times other than when they are practicing or playing in games.

"I will recommend to the Board of Regents that Coach Rankin be given a leave of absence for 12 months, beginning with the spring term which begins March 5," Dr.

UK Football Fans Assured Of Three Games For 1944

Football fans were virtually assured of Kentucky's having a squad next year when the University this week signed to play three Southeastern conference teams for games next fall. One of these teams, according to Coach Ab Kirwan, may meet the Wildcats twice if such a measure is necessary to complete the schedule.

Meet Vandy

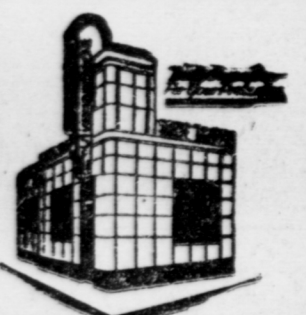

The Wildcats will meet the Vanderbilt Commodores in Nashville on October 7. Then on October 14, they will clash with Georgia on their home field in Athens. The exact date for the game here with Tennessee's Vols will be determined later, Kirwan said, and will be set for either the Saturday before Thanksgiving (November 18), Thanksgiving Day (November 23), or the following Saturday (November 25).

Kirwan said that there was a possibility that Tennessee would be played twice during the season, and that Coach John Barnhill of the Vols was willing to schedule a brace of games with the 'Cats.

THEY Sacrifice --- for YOU Can't YOU Sacrifice for THEM?

THEIR names are legion. Most of them never get in print: though all of them are proudly posted in the city square . . . Some of them will never come home. Many more will come home, injured beyond remedy. And there will be the fortunate millions who will come back to the land for whose freedom they fought: alive, well, to go on living gloriously!

The time to pay that debt of gratitude will not be when the war is over. The time is now: so that the war will be shorter, and so that hundreds of thousands more men will be alive to come home; alive to enjoy the benefits which they were willing to make the supreme sacrifice to secure!

The way is simple: just make this day your day to buy an extra $100 in War Bonds. You say it will mean a sacrifice on your part? That's fine! For only in making a sacrifice can you really prove to our fighting men that we're behind them—at any cost.
